

Mr. Adam Leishman
Chief Executive Officer
Bravo Holdings

Profile

Adam is a dynamic leader and influencer, with a proven track record of delivering transformational changes to bus systems around the world including London and Singapore when he was CEO of Tower Transit. Off the back of these award-winning, high-profile successes, Adam established Ascendal Group, with a vision of bringing cities to life by re-thinking public transport systems in the world's leading cities, and how they interface with urban development. With operations currently across four continents, Adam is redefining standards as to what 'good' public transport looks like. Through his company Ascendal he is currently leading Hong Kong's Bravo Holdings, the owner of the iconic Citybus, which serves 1 million passengers a day and Bravo Media, an exciting new Out of Home advertising agency that recently securing a major MTR contract. Adam is also passionate about redefining the relationship between public transport and urban development with public transport being the backbone of a city and through his Ascendal Property division is undertaking a major transit oriented development in Westminster, London.